Trentel, Turner Rule SJA May Festival Held Saturday

Living pictures depicted the theme of the annual May Ball staged at St. Joseph Academy Saturday night.

The stage was set with two huge picture frames. When the curtain parted, two artists busy with their brushes were finishing the portraits of lovely maidens in the frames of the pictures. Each portrait contained one senior maid with her junior maid. The music broke into a fanfare, and the living pictures stepped out of their frames and came down the steps from the stage to be greeted by their dukes. As each dame emptied a fresh picture was formed by the entry of new maids.

On the floor of the gymnasium, where the maids met their dukes, girls in delicate pastel dresses holding flower chains formed an aisle on each side of the floor. Other maids, carrying staffs of fresh flowers, served as escorts for members of the court.

The King and Queen, David Trentel and Miss Carol Turner, made their entry last. A gracious pair of monarchs, they greeted the many who had come to pay homage to their court with smiles of welcome.

The Queen wore a gown of white imported organza, very bouffant, with an overskirt of tiny handmade tucks, over which rhinestones were sprinkled. Lovely handmade white roses of tulle were placed at intervals on the overskirt. Her mantle was of the same design. The crown was made of red roses. She carried a bright scepter to which red roses were attached.

Maid of Honor was Miss Honorine Damborino, who wore a gown of white tulle over taffeta. The fitted bodice was enhanced by a very full powder puff ruffle framed about the shoulders in a picturesque Southern belle fashion. A dainty lace applique on the front of the bodice was set off by tiny satin rosebuds. The very full skirt had the same lace appliques placed at intervals on the tulle. From each applique flowing vertically were full powder puff ruffles matching those on the bodice.

She carried a bouquet of yellow rosebuds and fleur de lis.

As she reached the center of the floor the Duke of Honor, Bobby Falgout, descended from his place at the right of the King to accompany her to a place of honor.

Following the grand march of the court, their majesties mounted to the throne chairs in the center of the stage and, with their court, viewed the dance of the artists.

The dance interpreted the artist at his creative work. The dancers were garbed in vividly colored satin smocks and berets, and wore black satin trousers. They carried palletes and brushes.

The annual Bay High May Festival was held in the high school gymnasium Friday night, May 1, and was a very beautiful and picturesque scene to all Southerners and especially to Mississippians. It took you back to the old show boat days on the Mississippi.

One end of the gymnasium was converted into a very realistic show boat. The boat, docked at the river bank, made a very pretty scene amidst a profusion of trees, magnolias, water lilies and lilies surrounding the bank.

At the blast of a trumpet the heralds entered and took their places on each side of the throne, which was on the floor of the gym a little distance from the river bank. The duke came from the deck of the show boat and took their places ready to meet their maids as they came from the center door of the boat. The dukes were very gallant in their tuxedos of dark trousers and white coats and the maids made a picture of youthful beauty in their hoop skirts and ballerina dresses of pastel organdies and nets.

Then came the flower girls and the maid of honor. The maid of honor, Faye Rouchon, was dressed in a beautiful deep red net dress and carried a bouquet of white roses and gladioli. She was met by the duke of honor, Emory Cole, and was escorted to her place of honor beside the throne.

Then came the queen, Norma Johnson, with her flower girls and train bearer. She made a lovely picture in her white organdy dress and train set off by her bouquet of American beauty roses. The king, Sam Vaughan, met his queen gallantly and with much pomp and ceremony escorted her to her place on the throne where he placed the crown on her head.

The entertainment for the event was one of the most enjoyable events of the program. Billy James representing an old lady standing on the deck of the showboat sang "Old Man River." (The showboats of deck hands, led by Miss Kowalew, went through a very lively number of marching and drilling that only well-trained sailors can do. Next the modern dancers, trained by Miss Davidson, held very and held the audience spellbound in their dance to modern music.

Mr. and Mrs. Marilyn Moore and children spent their vacation with Mr. Moore's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Moore. During their stay they made a trip to Panama City, Fla. for a visit with Mr. Moore's sister and to the University of Alabama, where Alma Moore is a student.

CONGRESSIONAL SIDELIGHTS

THE FIRST HUNDRED DAYS

To a generation brought up on the excitement and fanfare of the New Deal-Fair Deal the first hundred days of the Eisenhower Administration have seemed relatively tame. The bold strokes of bank closures, party purges, and Supreme Court-packing of Roosevelt and the bickering with Congress of Truman are missing, and this absence of fireworks has given the impression of leadership drifting on the part of the new administration.

Faltering has been apparent in the agriculture program, and in other fields the Administration is obviously feeling its way along. However, the public opinion polls, as of now, show that the country as a whole is still backing the new President. What the situation will be in another hundred days remains to be seen.

THE PRESIDENT'S CHALLENGE

There was certainly no quarrel, even from the most partisan quarter, with President Eisenhower's open challenge to Russia on the question of peace in his recent full dress foreign policy speech. For the second time the President has carried the ball in the Administration's new positive policy in dealing with Russia. While touched in

The engagement has been announced of Miss George Lader, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Lader of Anley, to William Irwin, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Irwin of Nashville, Tennessee.

The wedding will take place at Our Lady of the Gulf Catholic Church May 30, 1953.

diplomatic terms, it was nevertheless sufficiently forthright for the Masters of the Kremlin, as well as the rest of the world, to understand. It was a bid to Russia to put up or shut up in the parlance of the man on the street on the question of peace.

Our views on what Russia will do are too well known to the readers of this column for lengthy repetition here. If Russia should decide, for reasons of its own, that there should be peace in Korea—which we seriously doubt will happen—the stepping up of trouble in other areas, Indo-China, Iran, or Germany, may be expected. Nevertheless, the fact still remains that this country has now seized the initiative from Russia in the unfortunate Korean situation and is in more favorable light with the rest of the free world.

We must now prepare for our next move if we are to hold that advantage when the Russians prevent a real peace, as may be expected.

Going over the $2 billion mark for the first time, gasoline and other automotive taxes collected in 1952 by the federal government totaled $2,100,056,269.

A WORD OF THANKS

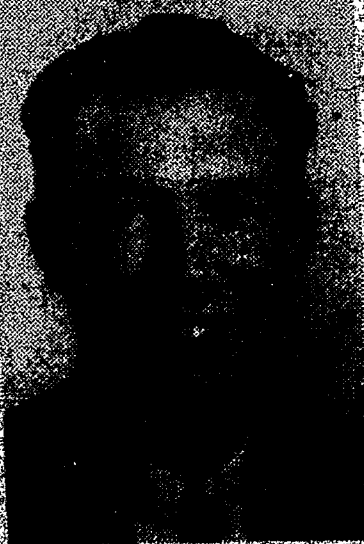

The success of our celebration on April 22—the elevation of the first Negro Priest to the dignity of a Catholic Bishop, the Most Rev. Joseph O. Bowers, SVD, JCL—was largely due to the magnificent cooperation and willingness of the people of this community.

In behalf of St. Augustine's Seminary, I wish to express my sincere thanks to all who have helped to make this history making event a memorable day in the hearts of all who witnessed the magnificent spectacle.

In appreciation to all who have so generously cooperated, I assure you the prayers of our community.

play the services of a regular attorney. His argument was that should we need for such services the fee would be more than the cost of employment on a monthly basis.

Immediately following Mr. Glover's election, Mr. Lader was then in complete control of the Council and Mr. Russell was appointed City Attorney. Now here are some facts and figures:

In the past four years the cost of legal fees and salaries has been $9,600.00 for an average of $2400.00 monthly. This is broken down as follows:

Salary paid to Dan M. Russell	$4,800.00
Fee to Dan M. Russell & Associates (suit against members of the previous administration)	4,500.00
Fee to Robert L. Genin	150.00
Fee to Dan M. Russell	150.00

There are always two methods of costing public business. The better way is to pay the contractor better pay attention to the community, we are spending for the month on the collection of garbage. The cost can be reduced in two ways.

The first would be by contracting the garbage pick-up to an individual operator. I finally succeeded in convincing the Commissioners that we should at least ask for bids for the garbage collection on the basis of one year's contract.

Two or three bids were submitted. The lowest and best bid was a twice each week pick-up at a price of $300.00 per month. The taxpayers would have been saved a sizeable amount of money.

The Commissioners refused to enter into the contract because, as stated by Mr. Glover and agreed to by Mr. Lader, "we would then be forced to lay off some of the city workmen."

The second means of saving money would be by the purchase of modern garbage collection machinery. But as

Vaughan, Johnson King and Queen Of Bay Hi Festival

The annual Bay High May Festival was held in the high school gymnasium Friday night, May 1, and was a very beautiful and picturesque scene to all Southerners and especially to Mississippians. It took you back to the old show boat days on the Mississippi.

One end of the gymnasium was converted into a very realistic show boat. The boat, docked at the river bank, made a very pretty scene amidst a profusion of trees, magnolias, water lilies and iris surrounding the bank.

At the blast of a trumpet the heralds entered and took their places on each side of the throne, which was on the floor of the gym a little distance from the river bank. The dukes came from the deck of the show boat and took their places ready to meet their maids as they came from the center door of the boat. The dukes were very gallant in their tuxedos of dark trousers and white coats and the maids made a picture of youthful beauty in their hoop skirts and ballerina dresses of pastel organza and nets.

Then came the flower girls and the maid of honor. The maid of honor, Faye Roushon, was dressed in a beautiful deep rose net dress and carried a bouquet of white roses and daisies. She was met by the duke of honor, Penny Cole, and was escorted to her place of honor beside the throne.

Then came the queen, Norma John, escorted by her flower girls and train bearers. She made a lovely picture in her white organza dress and train set off by her bouquet of American beauty roses. The king, Sam Vaughan, met his queen gallantly and with much pomp and ceremony escorted her to her place on the throne where he placed the crown on her head.

The entertainment for the court was one of the most enjoyable events of the program. Billy Jones, representing an old dandy standing on the deck of the show boat, sang "Old Man River." Then the troubadours of deck hands, led by Miss Roebelen, went through a very lively number of marching and drilling that only well-trained sailors can do. Next the modern dancers, trained by Miss Boyd, held every eye and held the audience spellbound in their dance to modern music.

Federal Housing Unit Completion Slated For July

The Federal Housing Units, under construction for the past six or seven weeks, should be completed during the month of July and ready for occupancy by August, according to George Heitzmann, Director of the local Housing Authority.

The 18 low-rent units, for both white and colored, will have from 1 to 4 bedrooms. Shades will be supplied for all rooms, and ranges and refrigerators furnished for the kitchens.

Heitzmann said that rentals have not yet been fixed, but the rents will be "minimum."

Approximately 75 workmen are employed on this job, including about 50 local men. Due to the shortage of brickmasons in this community, the authority was forced to employ laborers for this job, Heitzmann said.

The buildings are being constructed of concrete block with brick veneer finish.

Mrs. Presley said that she and her mother heard of the storm on television and tried to telephone her brother, but was informed that the call would take about five hours.
